

Case Study: BlueScope

Photo by Guillaume-Lebelt

Fulfilling BlueScope's urgent need for Technical Officers

The Challenge

Steel industry heavyweight, BlueScope, needed to recruit three Technical Officers as soon as possible. Changing market conditions had led BlueScope to stop recruiting as many cadets as they had done previously. However, when business suddenly picked up, they found that they were seriously short-staffed and couldn't manage the increasing work load. In particular, their Metal Coating Line (MCL) and Continuous Paint Line (CPL) wasn't staffed by enough Technical Officers - a role usually filled by cadets. The MCL and CPL is a critical step to turn raw steel into the BlueScope products that Australians love, such as COLORBOND® steel and ZINCALUME® steel; but without enough staff, the MCL and CPL were struggling to keep up with work load demands.

The Solution

BlueScope commissioned 360HR to find three contract Technical Officers within a very tight timeframe. After taking a comprehensive brief that outlined BlueScope's requirements, 360HR used their databases and extensive networks, in addition to recruitment advertising, to engage and assess a large pool of candidates. Within a fortnight, 360HR had conducted initial interviews and had shortlisted six candidates for further interviews. Working with BlueScope's HR professionals, 360HR coordinated the next two rounds of interviews, both in person and via video-conferencing, and conducted reference checks on the three successful candidates.

The Result

In under four-weeks, 360HR eradicated the urgent staffing shortfall on BlueScope's Metal Coating Line and Continuous Paint Line. With the additional staff the MCL and CPL could focus on implementing production efficiencies and take advantage of the improved trading conditions. All the new team members have performed their duties extremely well; in fact, after their initial seven-month contracts, all the Technical Officers recruited by 360HR went on to further roles, including fixed-term and permanent positions, with BlueScope.

FACTS

Industry:

Manufacturing

Products / Services:

Leading international supplier of steel products for the global building and construction industry

Financials:

ASX listed company (BSL) with a market capitalisation of ($M) 8,874 and annual revenues in excess of AUD $9.2B

Number of Employees:

16,000 employees

Website:

www.bluescope.com

Contact a 360HR Associate to find out more